

ABSTRACT

A apparatus and method for manufacturing a laminated optical disc that include an adhesive applying device adapted to apply an adhesive to a first substrate, and forming an adhesive layer having a specific thickness between the first substrate and a second substrate superimposed onto the first substrate. The manufacturing apparatus and method may further include a provisional bonding device adapted to partially cure the adhesive layer to partially bond and provisionally fasten the first substrate and the second substrate.